Continuation of Substance of Interview including description of the general nature of what was discussed: Applicant's representative argued that inherency required that all of the subjects that would be treated as described in the '366 patent also be in need of bone and cartilage repair. The Examiner countered that what was required was that the method be such that any patient treated that had such a condition would have inherently been treated by the method, and that the incidence of, for example, arthritis, was sufficient high that the population of those suffering from cancer would include sufferers from arthritis. It was agreed that the matter would be discussed with a quality assurance specialist and that, if need, another interview with the specialist would be scheduled..
